How MED-CALL Emergency Response Systems monitors your medical alert system:

System - is monitored 24/7 and always on standby mode and ready for any emergency situation.

System - has a backup battery in case of power loss, system continues to work for up to 20 hours. The battery will recharge once power is restored.

Power loss reporting - if power is lost or system is disconnected, system will report signal to central station that the system has lost power and is running on back-up battery power, triggering a call to client to see why system has lost power.

Button low battery reporting - if necklace or bracelet has a low battery, system will report signal to central station that necklace or bracelet will need to be replaced soon, the office will call client and schedule service call.

Button and system - are tested monthly by a live operator to ensure they are working properly.

Alarms - are recorded for quality assurance.

24 hour central station number - for technical support or questions from on call technician.
